Final Assignment

Choosing a topic is not always simple as it seems. After working in different projects using many software and skills of creativity , being in this class is at some point a huge luck and opportunity to see life and different perspectives. In this project I choose to talk about my home land, Senegal , west Africa. Working on it was very helpful after being creative. It was also an opportunity to show my classmates and others a few about Senegal , the place where I was born and raised. Throughout this project I tried to show a bit about seneglese basic culture , some economic activities,educational system and basic culture . Finally I would like to mention that I show to work with HTML in order to provide more information. Also as a computer major I am more comfortable using code than other software that we learn.
Thank you !
